A Senior's Soliloquy.

To pass or not to pass—that is the question;
Whether 'tis better with the mind to study
The books and problems of unfeeling teachers,
Or to hit the ceiling with a dreadful thud,
And by opposing smash through? To miss—to "bust"
No more; and by a "bust" to say we end
The headache, and a million dread nightmares
School boys are heir to; 'tis a consummation
Profanely to be wished: To fail—to "bust"
To "bust"—perhaps wide open. Ay, there's the rub;
For in that "bust" of ours what ghosts may come,
When we have put aside these student garbs,
To haunt our lives; there's the respect
That plays the dickens in the school-boy's life;
For who would bear the knocks and bumps of school,
The professor's frowns, the best man's ostentations,
The impudence of freshmen, and the quizzes
That wicked juniors ask a senior grave,
When he himself might his departure take
Without his sheepskin? Who'd these troubles bear
But that the dread of something next school year,
The often traversed pathway o'er whose stones
So many students fall—sure cooks our goose,
And makes us trembling face the music now
Than dance to other that we know well of?
This passing scares the mischief out of all,
And examinations sure both tough and long
"Fan us" in the first action.

The History of the Dot

By James B. Bradford

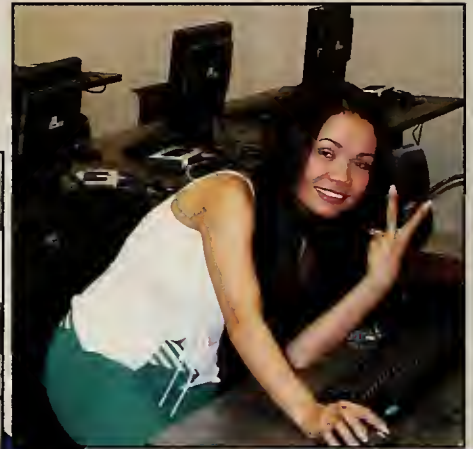

Cumberland University, founded in 1842 – more than 150 years before the rise of the internet. So how did the builders of Memorial Hall know that we would eventually have our own web address when the building was completed in 1890? Some of you may think it an crazy far ranging such a question. Some may think, “I thought Al Gore invented the internet.” Some may not even care. I ask you however, to look at Memorial Hall. At the entrance to Memorial Hall is a sign that reads “Cumberland University.” Directly following “Cumberland University” is a giant dot, period, what have you. This surprising phenomenon was brought to my attention by Eric Cannon, Director of Security, on a golf cart ride to my house. It is something that I had never noticed until now, and it made me ponder as to the wisdom of the sign’s dot.

Many questions have arisen as to how the dot arrived on Memorial Hall. Maybe it was a sign by the entrance on the building of future technology. Some may say that it was supposed to mean that we are just Cumberland University and nothing else. No one knows the real answer to the question at hand, not even Cannon. This was all on the building before Al Gore was even born, stated Cannon.

James B. Bradford is the author of the book, The Significance of History.

Could this symbol not be a clue into the unknown history of Cumberland University? Could we possibly be on top of a treasure?

Your New Café: Coming Soon

Over the past couple of years we have heard much about The Café that for many of you hope might be lost. Do not fret because it will soon be real. As an intern working at the Office of Advancement (which also houses the Office of Advancement) that we are extremely close. We have raised a lot of money to what some of you may believe, and we look forward to taking ground on The Café to the very near future. The ground on The Café will make our campus the buzz of the town, and region as it will be a major building project. In the future, a Nursing and Science building on the main campus will be built.

In Memory Of: Dr. James B. Dressler

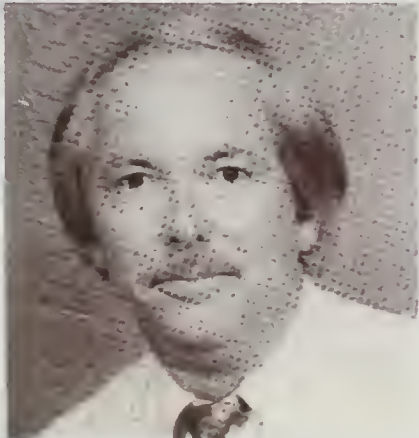

*"I watched the sun set today
And thought about how it set on you too soon.
And is life. Seasons change like the breeze blowing through the trees.
The sun sets. The moon rises. The cycle repeats.
If we're lucky we meet people who make
The living in between those better.
You did. You taught me so many more lessons
Than those in a classroom.
Life. That's what you taught all of us.
I could not have asked for a better teacher.
Tough. Unbreakable. Heard.
Or so everyone thought.
There was a soft spot in you too
For those who dared to look.
I was during one day and asked.
How could I know what a friend my teacher would become.
To you'll never be truly gone.
Like the fog that permeates the Gettysburg battlefield in the early morning.
You'll linger here.
In our hearts.
In our minds.
In the stories we tell over and over about our time here.
Until the sun sets on us too."
—Lane Crockett 2008*

Purloined Final Exam: Dr. Dressler

By Thomas Cook

1. When is rabbit season?
 2. When is deer season?
 3. When is quail season?
 4. When is bald eagle season?
 5. For easy "A," would you be willing to buy my hunting licenses for the hunting seasons listed above?
 6. Are you functionally literate?
 7. If your answer to question #6 was "no," then none of the other questions will mean much to you, either.
 8. Who is buried in Grant's tomb?
 9. Which tastes better, bald eagle or spotted owl?
 10. DISCUSSION: List every officer involved (Union and Confederate) in the Battle of Gettysburg. Tell their rank, which side each fought for, each one's importance in the battle, whether or not he died in the battle, and each one's grandmother's favorite dish.
- BONUS: If a married couple from Arkansas moves to California then later gets a divorce, are they still legally brother and sister?
